Emmanuel Hudson

Emmanuel (24) was born and raised in Mississippi, but his large family of 8 moved to Atlanta in 1998. As a child, his natural ability to entertain was prevalent while in school easily winning over their classmates with his dancing, comedy, and rapping. His talent and mischievous nature gained him both notoriety and reprimand, as evidenced by Emmanuel attending four different high schools before his 2009 graduation. Older brothers Matthew and Okeffe encouraged Emmanuel to pursue his comedic aspirations through creating skits that highlighted his many talents.

In January 2012, Emmanuel as a part of a duo (EP Hudson) received his big break when he shared the video for the catchy and hilarious song, "Ratchet Girl Anthem," on YouTube. In a matter of months, the popularity of the video has led to a record deal with Archive Entertainment and an album, "LOL;" nationwide performances and a variety of special appearances. Currently, Emmanuel is enjoying coverage in local and national media outlets such as BET "106 and Park and Ebony magazine, conducting nationwide performances and appearances, and a rotating spot on Streetz 94.5 "The Morning Grind" morning show. Currently, the song has over 200 million YouTube views and 70,000 iTunes downloads.

In January 2014, the duo released the first ever full-length parody mixtape "Ratchet Du Soleil" to rave reviews. In just under a month the project had over 500,000 downloads. In addition to touring, exploring TV development deals, and guest starring roles on "The Rickey Smiley Show," Emmanuel has also scored roles in MTV2 "Nick Cannon Presents: Wild 'N Out," the Rain Forest film "Ride Along" starring Kevin Hart and Ice Cube, hosting Vevo's new game show "Guess the Video," and the ABC network series "Nashville."
