

Francisco Ramos

Francisco Ramos was a top-ten finalist on Last Comic Standing 2015 and continues to flourish as an actor and voice-over artist in addition to touring as a stand-up comic across North America, most recently starring in the TV series "Angie Tribeca" from Steve Carell, Netflix's "Lady Dynamite", Showtime's "Shameless" and voicing the role of Marmoset in the animated film "RIO" with Anne Hathaway and Jesse Eisenberg. He has also appeared on the hilarious @midnight on Comedy Central and several times on Jimmy Kimmel Live. Recently he shot his HBO special "Entre Nos" that will air this summer.

Early in his career Francisco was selected to perform in the CBS Multicultural Diversity Showcase, where he was one of 12 selected from a pool of 5,000 applicants. Having won first place in the Lucille Ball Comedy Festival sponsored by NBC/COZI TV, American Latino produced a documentary on Francisco on his rise as a comic for Latino Out Loud (LOL).

Francisco was a writer and the host of the 123UNODOSTRES show "Bashtag" and continues to write and develop ideas for film and television.

Originally from Venezuela, Francisco grew up in Washington D.C. Before discovering his passion for comedy, he graduated from the University of Maryland with a double major in Finance and International Business. With a flourishing career as a stand-up comedian, actor, and writer, Francisco is quickly becoming one of the best comics in the industry.

Francisco's debut album "Vayalo" has been exclusively playing on Sirius XM and has been a top 5 album on the Billboard Comedy Charts.