ZEKE NICHOLSON

Zeke is a performer/writer hailing from Rhinebeck, New York. After graduating from Williams College, he moved to Los Angeles to pursue comedy, enrolling at the Upright Citizen's Brigade Theater (UCB) immediately upon arrival.

After cutting his teeth for a couple of years by performing constantly on the LA indie improv scene, Zeke made the jump to the UCB main stage when he was selected for the Harold Team, Cardinal Redbird, who currently performs on Monday nights. Zeke is also a member of the all-black, all-male comedy group "White Women," who are regular UCB main stage performers for both improv and sketch, showcasing their particular brand of high-energy and physical comedy. After multiple industry showcases and having sketches featured on the homepage of Funny Or Die, "White Women" has become one of the hottest comedy groups in Los Angeles.

When he's not at UCB, Zeke can be found performing with "The Story Pirates," a renowned children's theater/education company that take stories written by children and turns those stories into comedic sketches that are then performed at schools across the country.

His credits include "Fast Food Heights" for MTV, sketches for Russell Simmons' production company, "All Def Digital," and multiple independent pilots, one of which was a Comedy Central Top 50 selection at the NYTVF in 2013.
